

Generation of Public Spaces Project in Lima will be present in Habitat III

The citizen observatory Lima Cómo Vamos will be present in the most important event of urban sustainable development, Habitat III through its project Occupy Your Street.

For three days, Quito will be host of the most important international forum in America: Habitat III, in which the global commitment with urban sustainable development in cities will be discussed and reinforced. A main matter of this global goal is the creation and generation of quality public spaces for citizens, which is why many Latin American experiences will be presented.

One of these experiences is Occupy Your Street, initiative promoted by Lima Cómo Vamos and Fundación Avina that seeks to create new public spaces through the regeneration and revitalization of existing spaces at a low cost, fast implementation and high impact.

This experience will be presented along Carbon Disclosure Project in the Side Event: “Creative Collaboration on Climate Change and Public Spaces Regeneration for Making Better Cities”, in which the mayor of San Borja district, Marco Álvarez will also present the experience of public spaces promotion and green areas in his district.

This event will take place in:

Venue: Room MR14 of House of Ecuadorian Culture “Benjamín Carrión”

Date: Wednesday 19th /11:00 am – 12:00pm

The goal of Occupy Your Street is to empower local stakeholders to promote the recuperation of public spaces as an interaction site, of social cohesion and cultural expression in Lima (Perú)
